Governments as Co-operators

Ten or fifteen years ago the popular demand in connection with the solution of large and grave problems affecting economic and marketing conditions in these Western Provinces was for Government ownership and operation. This demand was, perhaps, most insistently urged in connection with interior and terminal grain elevators. Today, no such demand is made, nor is there any expressed wish for the adoption of such a policy.

The reason for this marked change in public opinion is not far to seek. Manitoba tried Government ownership and operation of interior elevators, and it was far from being a success, either financially or in the character of the service rendered. Saskatchewan, on the other hand, tried the experiment of creating a large co-operative company, composed of the farmers themselves, managed and controlled entirely by farmers, but assisted with the financial backing of the Provincial Government.

From its inception the Saskatchewan experiment has been an outstanding success. That success has been due to the whole-hearted and loyal manner in which the farmers have supported their own institution—something it was predicted they would not do; it has been brought about by notably careful and efficient management; and, lastly, it has been made possible because of the sympathetic treatment accorded on all occasions by the Government, which has placed the resources and credit of the Province back in the control and management of that enterprise.

Saskatchewan has borrowed millions which have been loaned to the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co. but that Company has met every payment of principal and interest as it has become due, and the Provincial Treasury and the Saskatchewan taxpayer has not been called upon to put up a dollar. In addition to these direct loans, the Government has pledged the Provincial credit for other millions by giving guarantees to the Banks for the repayment of loans made direct to the Company. It is an acknowledged fact that without this Government backing, the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co. could never have succeeded in its earlier years, nor have achieved the fine record which stands to its credit. So successful, indeed, did the Saskatchewan experiment prove to be, that the other Provinces finally adopted it. And co-operative interior elevators have been followed by terminals owned and managed by these same companies.

The splendid results achieved by co-operative elevators led to the formation in Saskatchewan of the Province-wide co-operative creamery company, which took over all the Government owned and operated creameries, and has established many new ones and enlarged the old ones. It is repeating in its field the success of the co-operative elevator companies, and has established cold storage plants and other subsidiary enterprises.

Next came co-operative stockyards, which are yet in their infancy but which promise to become an important factor in the development and prosperity of the livestock industry of the West.

Co-operative wool marketing is now recognized as the most feasible and best method of handling the wool clip of the West, and has for some years past demonstrated its practicability by obtaining for the sheepmen of the West a higher price for raw wool than could otherwise have been secured by them.

Co-operation between Government and people has also resulted in Saskatchewan in a very rapid extension of rural telephone lines and facilities throughout the Province, bringing the farm home into immediate and direct communication with market towns, doctors and nurses, and removing to a large degree that isolation from which the farm home suffered in the past and which was one of the chief obstacles to keeping many people on the land.

The successes which stand to the credit of all enterprises in the West based on the co-operative principle have resulted in the development of a pronounced public opinion that it was far better not to rely absolutely upon a parental form of government, but, by co-operation of Government and people, build up a sturdy, self-reliant Province and Dominion. Now when a difficulty presents itself, people do not weakly turn to Governments with demands that they solve the problems for the people, but the people themselves tackle the problem and, with Government assistance, are proving their ability to solve and overcome their difficulties.

Another valuable feature of this adherence to co-operative principles and methods is found in the practical training being afforded thousands of farmers' sons in the conduct and management of large business enterprises. The value of such training can hardly be over-estimated, and it is having its effect in the adoption of more business-like methods in all departments of the farm, resulting in the saving of countless thousands of dollars in many small ways to the farmers in their own operations. Strict business methods are replacing aliphod ones while at the same time the man on the land is kept in close touch with world conditions and markets, and is steadily securing a larger grasp of those economic forces which have a direct bearing on the price of his product and his resultant prosperity.

STORMY WEATHER

HARD ON BABY

The stormy, blustery weather which we have during February and March is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep them in the house. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will not fail to break up colds and keep the health of the baby in good condition till the brighter days come along. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Home Made Bread

Home made bread is without doubt the cheapest and most healthful food that can be produced for human consumption. It is the most completely digested solid food in the world, over 90% of it being transformed into health and strength. It yields nearly twice as much nourishment as rice or potatoes, and is ten times as nourishing as an equal value of meat. No bread is more truly wholesome or more perfectly satisfactory than that baked at home in which Royal Yeast Cakes are used.

Scientists have discovered a new and truly wonderful use for Royal Yeast Cakes. Physicians are prescribing it with remarkable success for conditions attributed to poor blood conditions. Soak a cake of Royal Yeast for half an hour in a cup of lukewarm water with one teaspoon sugar. Then stir well and strain once or twice through muslin and drink the liquid. BETTER results will be obtained by allowing it to soak over night and drinking half an hour before breakfast. Repeat as often as desired. Send name and address for free booklet entitled "Royal Yeast for Better Health."

Weddings

ALLEN-NORTON

The home of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Norton, 1098 Twenty-first Avenue west, Calgary, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 16th, when their daughter, Ellen Ruth, was united in marriage to Mr. Claude G. Allen. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. E. Bland, D.D. The bride wore a gown of pale grey georgette and satin and was attended by Mrs. Norman B. Hays, of Kathryn, as matron of honor. Mr. Paul Allen, of Acme, attended the groom. About thirty-five friends and relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Allen left for the south, where the honeymoon will be spent.

VAN DELINDER—BRADSHAW

The following wedding notice taken from the Westminster paper, will be of interest to many residents of this district:

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday afternoon, February 14th at 1:30, at St. Andrew's church, when Alice Maud Mary, eldest daughter of Chief of Police and Mrs. G. T. Bradshaw, became the bride of Norman Van Delinder, of Calgary. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mitchell.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the church to the strains of the Wedding March, which was played by Mrs. M. Maxwell, of Vancover, who was seated in ivory satin and wore a veil of Brussels net, and carried a bouquet of baby pink roses. Miss Helen Bradshaw, sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a mauve tulle dress and hat and carried a bouquet of roses. Miss Dottie Bradshaw, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl, dressed in pale pink organdie. Mr. Harry Cahill, of Vancouver, acted as best man.

During the signing of the register Miss Brownie Peebles sang "Love's Coronation," and Mr. H. H. Bradshaw "I Love You Truly."

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Bradshaw, who was gowned in black tulle and wore a veil of ivory satin, and Mrs. T. L. Smith, of Vancouver, gowned in taupe velvet trimmed with real lace, received the guests. The dining room was decorated with streamers of smilax, pink tulips, frezias and violets, where a buffet luncheon was served. Those assisting were Mrs. T. L. Smith, of Vancouver; Mrs. Kyle, of Vancouver; and Mrs. H. H. Bradshaw. The church ushers were Mr. Carson Bryson and Mr. Clifford Critton.

The bride's travelling suit was of navy blue with hat to match. After their honeymoon spent on Vancouver Island, Mr. and Mrs. Van Delinder will reside on their farm near Crossfield. We join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Van Delinder much happiness.

"I reckon the old devil has a pretty good mortgage on my soul yet," he went on, his voice husky. "I know there'd have been killing done right then if it hadn't been for me and Gloss and Granny. They begged for me not to shoot. I heard some of the gang say: 'We've got to get that girl, boys.' I scarcely knowed what they meant—not then. There was a pot o' bolin' pitch on the crane there that I was gettin' ready for boot calkin', and just as they banged the door open I hurried that pitch plub into them. I reckon it found 'em all right, 'cause they scampered back purty quick, and when I peered through the crack I could see them runnin' for the timber. 'Back everybody, there's somebody comin', I heard some-shout. That's all I know now. But I wish I knowed why they wanted to steal little Gloss."

"I reckon we're goin' to know why right soon," mumbled Paisley. He stood by the open door and the cold night was aglow with the early winter stars hanging above the tree, fringe. In their light, beside his old resting place, the ash-placed, lay old Joe. An owl hooted from a nearby thicket and the chickens in the coop clucked and wailed their pain in their peepings and squawks. But old Joe did not awaken and turn three times around. No more would he arise in the golden of silvery night and stretch and yawn his thanks for life to the deep sleep.

Fuddling, bayward, a streak of crimson darted aloft and licked the heavens. Paisley started, and pointed toward it. Boy and his father followed Bill's gaze.

"It's Hallibut's schooner," exclaimed Boy, "she's on fire."

As they watched, a sheet of orange-yellow flame drifted up and the point-crests of the vessel rose in the air. A broad expanse of fiery spikes, fluctuating and drifting between earth and heaven, the men looked at one another. The light lights until they crept down from the skies and the owl's low hoot sounded again from the shadow.

"Surely hell is awake this night," said Paisley, wiping his face on his tuckeeen afore. "Thank God it's soon be daylight."

Boy picked up his rifle. "I'm goin' to look for Devie," he said.

"In a little while, Boy, in a little while," soothed Paisley. "It'll be light then, and you can see. No use goin' yet, lad. See it comin' down now, and it'll be safer for you then."

"Aye, lad," spoke McTavish firmly. "We must make no false moves now. The fight's on and our new law must be lived up to. If we sin in killing them who wish to kill us why, sin we must. The only brother I had in the world was massacred because he found killin' a red snake hard. We'll show no mercy to devils that would try to steal our little girl."

Boy had drawn the dead dog into the room and was stroking its long red hair with his hand.

"It's not in reason to think Hallibut 'ud get in his work here and turn back and set fire to his own schooner," said Paisley. "He's done it, though, and make a case against us. We can't deny sayin' that we'd stand up for our rights. They thought if they could get hold of Gloss that we'd give up the deeds to our properties to get her back."

"Who was in the gang?" asked Boy. "I saw two of them when I opened the door," replied McTavish. "They were the men who shot Simpson the teacher—he was with 'em."

He broke off, his jaw dropping. Boy sprang to his feet, his face twitching in a fury of hate. His strong teeth had bitten blood from his tightened lips. He gazed across toward the approaching dawn to where the scar of civilization lay upon the wild. Two older men glanced at each other and the father shook his head.

The question asked in Paisley's glance was beyond all answering from him.

Not until the red sun had cut a disk in the misty eastern skies did Boy turn and sit down wearily on the stool. Then Paisley was the first to break the gloomy silence.

"Boy," he said, putting his hands on the shoulders of that drooping form, "me'n you have been through close shaves together; have chopped logs along the two next best choppers in Bushwhackers' Place; have hunted and fished together. And I reckon we're pals now if we've ever got to be. It's 'cause I've been through purty much the same thing as you're goin' through now that I want to speak a word. You've made up your mind to get even with the teacher. Boy, don't you do it—not until you're sure of what you may only fancy now. Why, you'd about kill him if you ever got started. Let me help you untangle this riddle, and let me give Simpson his deserts like a good old pal ought to do."

Boy shook his head.

"Bill," he said in hard, even tones, "you've a mighty big claim on me. I know that better'n you do. You know that I'd follow any advice or you in reason, same's I've always done. I'll promise to do this much. I'll let you find for sure that he was with the gang before I do it; but it's got to be done by me, Bill."

He wrung Paisley's hand, smiling bravely, then passed into the next room.

Paisley felt in his pocket and brought forth a smoke-grimed pipe. He twisted off a piece of Canadian tobacco the size of a walnut, crammed it into the spacious bowl, and, applying a coal from the fire, smoked as though his life depended upon his filling the room with blue smoke in a specified time. Next, he turned to Big McTavish, who sat bent before the fire.

"It's funny, ain't it?" he whispered, nodding toward the other room.

McTavish drew himself up slowly. "What's funny, Bill?"

"Paisley carried his stool over close to that of the father. His face was working and the blue clouds of raw tobacco smoke floated from his lips in mountains. He placed the stool down and sitting on it, peered into the older man's troubled face.

"Mac," he said gently, "there ain't

"Mary Ann," commanded her mother sternly, "answer me—be you?"

"Yes, ma," answered Mary Ann, and she snuggled down again.

Paisley stood his rifle against a tree. His face was aglow with hope.

"Mary Ann," he said gently, "you've known me a long time, and you know just why I ask this question. Has he been square with you?"

She gazed at him in wonderment. "Square with me?" she exclaimed, and laughed. "Well, you better believe I've been square."

Paisley caught the girl's hands and held them tight.

"And didn't you care for him a lot?" he asked huskily.

"No," she answered, her face averted. "I didn't care for him at all. He wasn't my style, Bill."

"Mary Ann," said the Bushwhacker, "so long's I thought you liked Simpson better'n I kept away. Now, if I could learn somehow that you cared more for me than you do for anybody else, give my life, as Mrs. De-clue says, if I wouldn't ask you right out to be Mrs. Paisley. I've got a nice home all to myself and three old socks crammed with greenbacks made out of pelts, hid away again 'n a wardrobe."

"You're a fool, Bill," she whispered, hiding her face on his shoulder.

Widow Ross, coming out hurriedly from the house with a steaming pot of potatoes in her hand, saw something that almost made her drop her burden. There stood long Bill Paisley, with his arms about her Mary Ann's waist.

"Bill Paisley," gasped the widow, advancing, "you're right away from Mary Ann. Ain't you ashamed of yourself? You're old enough to be a grandfather."

"You're a long way from gettin' away from my girl or I'll scald you with this hot potato water."

"She ain't no more no more, wider," grinned Paisley. "She's mine now."

"Mary Ann," commanded her mother sternly, "answer me—be you?"

"Yes, ma," answered Mary Ann, and she snuggled down again.

Rebellion Days, 1884-85

By O-G-E-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

Here was war upon us with a vengeance and an active hostile for a guest, or prisoner—which? On thinking the matter over I told Mr. Indian he must stay at the house until my return, putting him on his honor to take care of my wife and children, and this they both faithfully promised.

Next morning early I started in for the Carrot River settlement, and as the ridges were bare of snow, burnt the grass en route, this being the usual native custom in the spring, as later on the sloughs were burnt round. Thus no old bottom could accumulate, and that is the great danger in a fall fire, as with several years' collection, both timber and soil will be destroyed, and, naturally, very great injury done to all fur-bearing animals.

On reaching the crossing at Carrot River, I found a number of the settlers busily engaged in fortifying a log house. One of them dashed up to me, catching my bride and shouting, "Indians in every bluff!" My reply was dry and short to the effect that I had not seen them. A number gathered round, and certainly the news was bewildering if half of it was true. Indians reported in active rebellion on all sides.

My wife and I were escorted to the log house, and the settlers and ranchers and our side badly defeated. Fort Carlton was burnt and every settler for many miles round had taken refuge in Prince Albert. They had formed a committee of defence under Capt. Myers and these gentlemen I went to see at once. I related the facts as to the Indian at my house and asked as to what disposition had better be made of him. I also stated if they wished him brought in as a prisoner I would undertake to do it. The committee retired for a consultation, and I took a look round the premises. A small enclosure of building logs was being placed in position round the house to act as a stockade. The place swarmed with women and children. Downstairs in the house were a number of old guns and rifles, all loaded and standing loosely in the corner. Picking up one, the stock fell off. "Ah," was the remark, "you should have had the head of the nail up." The nail evidently acting as a key. There was little or no attempt at discipline, and I could by no means consider placing my family here for protection.

I was asked to come in by the committee, whose decision was that after carefully considering the question of my captive Indian who had openly declared himself a rebel, that I was to use my own judgment in the matter, but to warn him not to pass close to this fort or he would be liable to be shot. Capt. Myers then kindly offered me the position of second in command, but this I was compelled to decline. When he pressed me for a reason I gave him several, the principal one being that his fort was not defensible.

There was no water supply, no batteries, no lookouts, in fact it was a wooden trap, and would be much safer with my family in a bluff. Also I was of the opinion that the active part of this war was not against the settler, but against the government. The captain then asked for supplies and I told him I would be happy to bring in all surplus ammunition and food that I had in stock and take his receipts, and this he was quite pleased with.

Before I leave this brief reference to the famous fort in Carrot River, Tom McKay, that well-known loyalist, told me the ponies were hitched up and a strong party of heavily armed French half-breeds were just starting to raid this post when news of Middleton's army advance reached them and the plan was dropped. It appeared the French knew there were a number of Orangemen in the Carrot River company, and these were particularly disliked by them, for in the old H. B. government days this society was unknown. In fact, extreme toleration of all forms of religion was an outstanding feature of the company's rule.

I camped at Finlasson's that night, two fine Ontario men who, poor chaps, afterwards perished in a vain attempt to reach the north end of Lac Du Brochet on a trading expedition, this in 1887-8. I spent the best part of one night in trying to dissuade them from trying, for they were very green as to northern conditions, but without success. These men, like myself would not go in the fort, and later on drove their fine herd of cattle out through the hills and sold them well to Middleton's army. If conditions got worse they intended going away in the hills with their cattle, but like myself they concluded victory would rest with our side sooner or later.

U. S. Bank Failures

Many Canadians will be surprised to read in connection with two of the latest failures of banks in North Dakota that the capital of one is given as $25,000 a.d. of another $10,000. This capitalization looks extremely small to Canadians who are familiar with banks capitalized at sums running into the millions. The American policy has been to encourage the little banks on the theory that a multiplicity of banking institutions would give an elasticity to credit and make it easier to do business.

The result has been the creation of hundreds of local banks, working on local capital, as contrasted with the Canadian system of great banking institutions, with a central organization and branches in a score of cities and towns in every province. In a period of depression scores of these small banks in the United States close their doors. Such a condition cannot but add to the panicky feeling that exists at a time when there is restricted business, unemployment and a conserving of capital from this direction it looks as if a bank with a capitalization of $10,000 was too much of a gambling proposition. In good times it might be all right; in hard times it becomes a menace.

Banking is a business that requires stability and the little bank, with no reserve, can hardly guarantee it.

China Protests

Chinese Government Thinks B.C. Measure Personal Offense.

Victoria.—Diplomatic protests have been made by China against British Columbia regulations prohibiting the employment of white girls in Chinese establishments, as a measure offensive to the Chinese. The complaint of the Chinese Government was laid before the British consul for foreign affairs in London, and by him transmitted to Ottawa. The British Columbia Government was notified and the whole question is now being considered by Premier Oliver and members of his Cabinet. The Chinese consul claims that Clause F Municipal Act, prohibiting the employment of white girls by Chinese is ultra vires of the province.

United States Has Ambitious Naval Plans

Naval Committee Would Ignore Disarmament Plea and Keep On Building.

Washington.—A United States navy, "at least equal to that of any other power," is advocated in the report of the Senate Naval Committee today to the Senate. The Committee, in replying to the Borch resolution, said: "It is not practical and is not a sound policy to suspend naval construction for a period of six months, or at all." It urged the completion of the great 1916 naval programme, except that two huge naval aircraft carriers be built in place of 12 destroyers.

Capital ships remain the principal units of sea power, the committee said, adding that submarines and aircraft were as yet only auxiliary forces.

The committee report to which Senator King, Democrat, Utah, plans to file a minority report, expressed a desire that an agreement for limitations of naval armament might be reached among the nations, but said that until some such arrangements were made, the United States should continue its building programme.

"In view of the importance of sea power to the United States," the committee informed the Senate, "and the fact that without it, we would be at the mercy of other nations, it is the opinion of your committee that this country should maintain a navy at least equal to that of any other power."

"The lessons of history teach us with indisputable truth that we cannot afford to depend for the guarantee of our rights and the rights of our people on the generosity, mercy or good will of any other power, with racial or conflicting interests and ambitions."

Shorter Working Hours In Ontario

Soldier-Labor Member Introduces Bill Which Specifies Maximum Working Time.

Toronto.—A start has been made in the direction of establishing an eight-hour day in the province of Ontario. In the legislature, Sergeant-Major J. McNamara, Soldier-Labor member for Riverdale, introduced a bill which will be known as the Maximum Work Hour Day Act. It provides for an eight-hour day, exclusive of the meal hour and for a period of rest of at least eight consecutive hours from the ending of work on any one day, to the beginning of work on the next day.

Systematic overtime will be considered illegal, except in cases of necessity, and in that case, only ten consecutive hours shall be worked.

Gets Big Share of Immigration

Half of Immigrants From Britain to Canada Secured by Ontario.

Ottawa.—Officials of the Department of Immigration and Colonization fail to confirm the statement attributed to ex-Controller H. J. Halford, who represented the Trades and Labor Conference of Canada at the international conference in London, to the effect that seventy per cent. of the people accepted in England for emigration to Canada had selected Ontario as their destination. The official figures for the years from 1911 to the close of the last fiscal year, show that an average of forty-six per cent. of the total English emigration is destined to Ontario.

The lowest average in any year of the period was forty-three per cent., which has been the prevailing average for the last two years, and the highest was forty-nine per cent. in the fiscal year 1914-15.

Propose Amendments for Election Laws in Dominion House.

Ottawa.—It is expected that the coming session will see some amendments to the Dominion Elections Act. A Man is just as Young and Strong as His Blood

No man can fight the battles of life and hold his own if his blood is not pure, for rich, red blood is what strength is based upon. When you see a strong, vigorous man, who never knows when he is licked, you may wonder that such a man has coursing through his veins rich, red blood. Many people have thin, pale blood. They are weak, thin, easily become discouraged quickly, and sometimes feel like giving up the struggle. Such folks need Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which is sold by druggists in liquid or tablet form.

HEART SO BAD WAS NOT SAFE TO LEAVE HER ALONE

Miss Eva P. Vaternan, Krugersdorf, Ont., writes—"I feel that I must write and tell you of the great benefit I have received from Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. About four years ago I was taken terribly bad with my heart, nerves and fainting spells, and was down in bed for about six months. I don't remember the advertisement of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, but I decided to try them, and before I had taken more than two boxes I could see they were helping me. I have taken about ten boxes, and am almost cured of those terrible spells. I sincerely feel that your medicine has proved a blessing to me, and I advise anyone troubled with their heart to try them, as I am confident they will find relief."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are sold at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Employment Service Has Proven To Be Valuable Economic Step

One of the problems continually engaging the minds of the governing bodies of every country, without exception is that of employment and the even distribution of labor, ensuring work for all citizens. It is only too common an occurrence to find one district in the land suffering from a superfluity of workers, whilst some other point is experiencing a dearth of labor, and employers are at their wits' end to secure men of a certain calling.

It is a valuable economic measure to bring these two localities together and satisfy the needs of both, and in many countries the agency to accomplish this is still lacking. The worker out of employment and the employer seeking help must in some way be brought together, and in Canada, until a few years ago, the only media existing were private employment bureaux supported by the fees exacted from employer and employee. Besides being only purely local affairs, these bureaux operated in such a way as to give rise to a great many abuses and occasioned a great amount of general dissatisfaction.

The problem of unemployment in Canada was largely solved by the institution by the Federal Government of Government Employment Bureaux operating without expense to those using them and maintaining a connected system of offices across Canada from coast to coast. This inevitably dealt a mortal blow to the private employment agencies, which was followed up by legislation in the different provinces making them illegal to operate.

The service was established in anticipation of the return of the troops from overseas and the problems of employment which would confront them. The scheme evolved has worked out uniformly successful both as to returned soldiers (to whom, after demobilization, preference was given in the occurrence of vacancies), and civilians. Through its operation a system of exchange from one part of Canada to another, which was long needed, has been brought about, moving men from inactive districts to those where conditions were active, and so reducing unemployment throughout the country to a minimum.

The employment service, as evolved by the Dominion Government and fully supported by them, arranged for the establishment of seventy-five employment offices, conveniently situated in every province. These are in constant daily touch with each other and with the headquarters at Ottawa, so that the superintendent of any provincial bureau is fully conversant each evening with the employment situation in every other station. The superintendent of a bureau is in constant receipt of applications from employers for workers and from workers for situations.

That the service, since being put into operation, has been highly successful and is deeply appreciated by the thousands of male and female workers who have made use of its medium to secure employment, cannot be doubted. The figures of weekly applications and placements evidence this. The statistics being made of it. During the month of October, for instance, there were 37,732 applicants for work who registered with the various bureaux throughout the Dominion. A total of 34,201 employers sought its aid in completing their staffs.

In this period, the many bureaux constituting the service from coast to coast accounted for 29,978 placements of applicants in regular employment in addition to other thousands placed in merely short-time, temporary positions. A great part of Canada's army was re-established in civil life through the aid of the service, which has undoubtedly played its part in the Dominion's post-war economic adjustment.

Win Many Dairy Awards

Prize Provinces Set High Standards For Creamery Butter.

That the prize provinces can produce butter the equal of any in the Dominion of Canada has again been proved at the all-Canada creamery butter competition held at Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Central Saskatchewan has won a signal victory in the competition for the quality of butter turned out this season, winning the first five prizes for the highest average quality. The winning creameries are as follows: Birch Hills, 95.23 points; Shellbrook, 95.19; Prince Albert, 94.87; Lloydminster, 94.86; P. Burns and Company, Prince Albert, 94.82.

In another competition a Saskatchewan farmer carried off second place, while five Alberta entries were in the prize list. In the inter-provincial butter making championship open to Western Canada, Manitoba, for the second year in succession, carried off the championship cup.

Pulp in Alberta

Plenty of Pulpmud to Justify Erection of Mill.

T. A. Burrows, owner and manager of the Phoenix Lumber Company of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, in speaking recently of the pulp industry of Alberta, stated that there was plenty of pulpmud along the Saskatchewan River west of Edmonton to warrant the construction of a large mill. He pointed out that before these lumber resources could be utilized it would be essential that power be developed along the Saskatchewan River at Rocky Mountain House or some other favorable location. Commenting on this phase of the industry he stated that the development of the pulp industry had proven conclusively that water power was necessary to make the industry a success, and he expressed the opinion that there was plenty of water power.

To Test Value Of Aircraft in War

Huge German Dreadnaught Ostfriesland to be Destroyed by U.S.

Participation by the United States War Department in a series of experiments to determine the value of aircraft against naval vessels, was invited by Secretary Daniels in a letter to Secretary Baker.

The first test will be conducted within the next 90 days, Mr. Daniels said, and conditions approximating as closely as possible those of battle will be simulated. The captured German battleship Ostfriesland, 26,500 tons, probably will be used for the first experiment.

Admiral R. E. Coontz, chief of naval operations, prior to the making public of Secretary Daniels' letter, told the House naval committee that within the next three months the navy would bomb a large warship from the air in the open sea, to test the theory advanced by Brig. Gen. Mitchell, of the Army Air Service, that airplanes had made capital naval vessels useless.

Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican, floor leader, who preceded Admiral Coontz on the stand, warned the committee that unless expenditures for military establishments were cut down, some of the larger nations of the world would be driven to bankruptcy.

The United States should take the lead in disarmament, declared Mr. Mondell, adding, "If an agreement is not reached for the limitation of armaments and war-like expenditures in the near future the fault will be that of the United States, as in former days the fault was that of Germany."

Goat Industry Expanding

B.C. Goat Breeders' Association Say Industry Has Come To Stay.

Mr. W. H. Cottrill, president of the British Columbia Goat Breeders' Association, at the annual meeting of the association held at Vancouver recently, asserted there was no doubt whatever but that the industry has come to stay and that in spite of many handicaps it is making remarkable progress. Further, he said, British Columbia is far ahead of any other portion of the Dominion, and will maintain that position. Other provinces look to British Columbia for their stock, and with the ideal conditions obtaining here for the raising of good goats there need be no fear as to the future. The trend is more and more towards keeping better stock, and breeders were striving to maintain their herds at a high level of quality, and by careful buying and breeding, feed and care, are making great progress. This was particularly in evidence at the various shows held during the past year, which were of considerable value in instilling a spirit of healthy rivalry and emulation.

Bituminous Sands Of Northern Alberta As Source of Crude Oil

In the district of Fort McMurray, some 200 miles north of Edmonton, occur vast deposits of bituminous sands, popularly referred to as tar sands. These have long attracted attention, being exposed for many miles along the cliffs eroded by the flow of the Athabasca River. The area of occurrence of the deposits is vast, that indicated by exposures being estimated from 750 to 1,000 square miles with probably wide extensions under heavy cover. The outcrops along the main river and the tributary streams have been estimated by S. C. Ellis (of the Dominion Government Department of Mines), as 175 miles in length.

Along these exposures the overburden varies—on some stretches it is reported as too heavy to allow of commercial development, but on others it is comparatively light, or easily removable, consisting of shales and sandstones. Ellis estimates that about 20 per cent of the exposures are of commercial interest owing to the comparative cheapness with which the bituminous sand can be won, and that systematic boring would, no doubt, disclose many other localities where overburden was sufficiently light to allow of development at reasonable cost.

Analysis of 72 samples made in the Department of Mines gives the bituminous content of the sands as from 12 to 17 per cent, and the quantity available will be enormous, even provided it were confined to the development of only 20 per cent. of the now known exposures reported upon by Ellis as commercially interesting.

In some of the exposures where there are partings of foreign materials, seepages of semi-liquid bitumen have followed the horizontal parting planes, drawn to the surface by action of the sun. Up to within a few years ago it was generally considered that the commercial value of these important deposits was confined to their use as paving material, and for this purpose they are undoubtedly suitable and will be so utilized when transportation facilities and growth of population create a demand within a reasonable radius of distribution. An experimental section paved in the city of Edmonton was opened to traffic in August, 1915, and is reported as still being in satisfactory condition at present date, thus determining the suitability of these deposits in this respect.

The approaching exhaustion of the many producing oil fields of the United States, disturbed conditions in the oil fields of other countries, combined with the enormously increased demand for crude oil and its by-products throughout the world, are gradually attracting attention to these bituminous sand deposits and the possibilities they offer as an enormous source of crude oil, fuel oil and their derivable by-products.

Germany, realizing the value of these deposits, and in pursuance of their well-known policy to corner the raw materials of the world, sent chemists to Alberta and secured some leases in 1913, the war, however, putting an end to their activities in this direction. Provided, therefore, that no new and important oil fields are brought in to supply the world's demands in the near future, there can be no doubt that the value of these deposits as a national asset will increase. The price of crude and fuel oil at time of writing is 56 cents and 17 1/2 cents respectively, and is rapidly approaching a figure at which it would be commercially possible to develop the vast supplies held in these sand deposits.

The total known deposits have been estimated to hold some 30,000 million barrels of oil. This figure is startling and is quoted here as giving some idea of the magnitude of this resource, rather than for any practical value of such an estimate. One important problem remains to be solved. It is to find a practical method of separating the oil from the sand particles which it coats and impregnates. The solution has already been found on a laboratory scale. The moment that crude oil reaches a price that will pay for commercial recovery of the supplies now held in the shales and sands, will undoubtedly see the commercial solution of all such technical difficulties.

China Famine Relief

Intensive Cultivation

Premier Urged To Appoint National Committee.

A strong appeal for national assistance on the part of Canada to China under her present distressing famine conditions was made to Premier Meighen by a deputation consisting of members of the Canadian Famine Relief Committee. It was urged that Canada should follow the example of the United States and appoint a national committee and that there should be a generous grant from the poll tax on Chinese who entered Canada last year. It was also suggested that the government consider sending wheat or flour to China, that the farmers be appealed to to contribute grain, and that free transport of these supplies across the country be provided.

The premier replied that information at present as to the famine in China did not lead the government to the conclusion that it ought to assist. However, it would consider the further information placed by the deputation.

The Medicine of the Gods.

Laugh whenever there is opportunity. The sages of the ages have advised. The wits of the world freely provide that food. Laughter is good. It is healthy. It helps that good digestion to wait upon appetite. The wholesome chuckle is better for the liver than a bottle of canned power. And it doesn't cost a penny. That's something, too, in these trying times.—Toledo News-Bee.

Mr. Noble Advocates Smaller Farms With Greater Science in Tilling.

"Scientific farming on a small scale would bring bigger profits to the western farmer and quicker development for the country," C. S. Noble, of Nobleford, Alta., largest individual farmer in the west, declared in an interview recently.

"Farmers in the west have cultivated large areas simply because the land was cheap. But we must get away from the idea of so many acres and turn our attention to the number of bushels per acre to get the best results," he said. "Under present labor conditions, the man who extensively cultivates a half section will make greater gains than the large farmer. A big population of small scale farmers, who are personally interested in the land, will bring prosperity to the country." Mr. Noble has 33,000 acres under cultivation and has been a successful large scale farmer from the start. "It takes many years to develop a large farm to a profit basis of operation," he said.

Drighlites at High Altitude.

A force of drighlites to operate at an altitude of six miles is one of the outstanding features of the U.S. aviation programme which army officials are now urging upon congress as a substitute for continued huge expenditures for battleships. Brigadier-General Wm. Mitchell, of the army air service, informed the United Press.

Sale of Alberta Hereabouts In Chicago

Prices Realized for the Total Herd Averaged $450 a Head.

An entire shipment of more than fifty head of Hereford cattle from the Curtice Cattle Company of Peace Valley, Alberta, has just been sold at Chicago. The prices realized for the total herd averaged $450 a head. Several particularly choice animals fetched more than $1,000.

It is interesting to note that eighteen head of the best cattle from this sale were purchased by a Chicago firm who have a large ranch almost adjoining that of the Curtice Company and intend shipping these animals back to Alberta where they will become the nucleus of another Hereford herd. With such stock as this for a foundation, this should soon grow into one of the best herds of Hereford cattle in the province.

An Attractive Dress of Black Net

By Gertrude Berensford.

The all-black dress always attracts certain women who realize that their beauty is greatly enhanced when attired in black. This model is fashioned from fine black net over a foundation of black crepe satin. The bodice shows the swathed lines that are quite popular at this time. The V-shaped neck opening is very pleasing, while the sleeves are wide and hardly full-length. The rather bouffant, curved side panels are trimmed with crepe ribbon. This mode or ornamentation is also apparent on the loose sleeves, while the neck opening is accentuated by similar trimmings. Should a touch of color be desired a garland of flowers might be used as a girle.

A WOMAN'S RIGHT TO GOOD HEALTH

Most Troubles Afflicting Women Are Due to Poor Blood.

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active life; yet nine out of ten suffer from some form of bloodlessness. That is why one sees on every side pale, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures—sure signs of headaches, weak backs, aching limbs and uncertain health. All weak women should use the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich, red blood that promptly transforms them into healthy, attractive women. This new, red blood is supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which reaches every nerve in the body. Through the use of these Pills thousands of women have gained benefit when suffering from anaemia, indigestion, general weakness and those ailments from which women alone suffer. Among the many women who tell of the good Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done them is Mrs. L. Hicks, Round Hill, N.S., who says: "I became very much run down in health; my blood seemed weak and watery, my strength failed, and I was so easily tired that my work was a burden. I had often read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them, and I can truly say that after using three boxes I found myself gaining, and under a further use of the pills all my old-time energy and vitality was restored. Out of my own experience I can strongly recommend this medicine."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Cause of Early Old Age

The celebrated Dr. Michenerhoff, an authority on early old age, says that it is "caused by poisons generated in the intestine." When your stomach digests food properly it is absorbed without forming poisons. Prolonged use of early old age and premature death, 15 to 30 drops of "Kidney's Syrup" will make your digestion sound, in most cases.

TO WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

This Woman's Letter Tells You How To Pass The Crisis Safely.

Lascelles, P.Q.—"During the Change of Life I felt as weak and run down I could hardly do my work. The perspiration would pour down my face so that I couldn't see what I was doing. We live on a farm, so there is lots to do, but many who feel as I did would have been in bed. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it did me a world of good. I tried other remedies but I put Vegetable Compound ahead of them all, and I tell every one I know how much good it has done me." Mrs. DUNCAN BROWN, Lascelles, Prov. Quebec.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, drowsiness, impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ear, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness should be heeded by middle-aged women, and let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carry them safely through this crisis as it did Mrs. Brown.
